

Alex Phillips is the President and CEO the Van Horne Institute and a trade & transportation lawyer based in Calgary. The Van Horne Institute is a national 'think tank' focused on growth issues related to trade, transportation, infrastructure and resource development. In his 35 year career, he has provided legal, regulatory and policy advice on network access and competition issues affecting carriers, shippers, forwarders, airports, ports, electricity grids, and related supply chain stakeholders. Alex holds a B.Comm.(Hons) and LL.B. degree from the Univ. of Manitoba; a Master of Laws degree in aviation deregulation from the London School of Economics (U.K); and a Doctorate (S.J.D. degree) in infrastructure privatization, trade access rights and dispute resolution from Bond University in Australia.