About the Symposium

While all Albertans know that October weather is followed by the short, cold days of winter, discover what is next in connectivity in Alberta at Digital Futures: What's Next, October 18-19 in Vermilion. Digital Futures is the forum that brings together community leaders, government officials, academics, industry and broadband champions from across the province to exchange knowledge and insights on what trends, issues, challenges and policies will shape broadband across the province.

Digital Futures: What's Next will include discussions on the Province's approach to broadband including its connectivity strategy and new SuperNet framework. Hear from groups and individuals from across various sectors as to why broadband is essential and what can be done to improve community, regional, rural and remote broadband. Digital Futures unique cross sectoral audience and presenters provides an opportunity for interaction among key broadband leaders in the province and also serves as place for those just orienting themselves on the topic to gain key insights. With both provincial and federal elections looming in 2019, new policies from both levels of government taking shape, and an ever evolving connectivity landscape across Alberta come to Digital Futures: What's Next in vibrant Vermilion Alberta. Hosted at the Pomeroy Inn & Suites Vermilion Hotel this October to be ready for what's next in broadband.
